

Evangelia Kyriazi

Evangelia Kyriazi studied Conservation and Restoration at the University of Lincoln and completed her post graduate studies in Applied Geo-Informatics in Environmental and Risk Management at the University of the Aegean. She has taught conservation, museology and risk management in tertiary education and vocational training centres and has worked as a conservator in Greece and abroad, treating a variety of objects and materials. She is currently a PhD candidate in Archaeometry at the University of Peloponnese in the Department of History, Archaeology and Cultural Resource Management researching on the deterioration factors and conservation of petrified forests.