George Malaperdas

George D. Malaperdas studied Environmentalist Cartographer at the Aegean University and completed postgraduate studies at the University of Athens, Department of Geology concerning the Prevention and Management of Natural Disasters. Currently is a PhD candidate at the University of Peloponnese in the Department of History, Archaeology and Cultural Resource Management, Laboratory of Archaeometry. He has worked in both the private and public sectors as well as in European projects focusing on the development of new technologies (GIS - spatial analysis, remote sensing, photogrammetry).