

Vanessa Muros

Vanessa Muros received a BA in Archaeology from Boston University and obtained graduate degrees in both archaeology and art conservation at University College London. She has worked as a conservator in several museums in the U.S and on archaeological sites world-wide focusing on the analysis and preservation of archaeological objects. She is currently a PhD candidate in the Laboratory of Archaeometry, Dept. of Archaeology, History and Cultural Resources Management, University of Peloponnese conducting research into early glass technology and the preservation of vitreous materials.